Pompeii Disappears!

The hot red lava bursting out of the volcano
Flaming vast fireball
The promise of a dangerous disaster.

Rumbling sounds of a dormant beast
The spitting red lava, the spitting red lava, the spitting red lava
Mount Vesuvius standing up like a glorious pink blossom tree.

A grey dark ash cloud
The black volcano crumbling and the shadowy figures falling.

The Snowy meadow

The snow is falling in the meadow,
The snow's following shadow.
A cub runs to it's hut,
All you can see is the print of a foot.

The bitter wind bites the snow,
In the dark the white balls will glow.
For a cub will pass,
Across the snowy grass.

Until the storm passes away,
In bed the cub will lay.
And now it's gone the opposite way,
The cub comes out to play.

And as the moon gets more round,
The snow falls on the ground.
Quicker and quicker the snow gets heavier,
It falls on a log turning it into a figure.

The Sea Monster

It was snowy like a winters day,
When children like to stay and play.
All of a sudden a wave smashed
out of the sky,
A monster arrived and it was like the world was nyl.

Out of the shadows was a figure and didn't run away,
The scaly, slimy sea monster lay.
She was behind the monster and she went to kill,
But when she stabbed it, ~~it~~ all the blood did spill.

She ran to the king and got a reward,
The reward was a gold medal and that is her award.

A True Mermaid

She sat upon beautiful Mermaid Bay,
Where Mermaids and Monsters alike come to play.
Verity-Evelyn a heroine and a maiden,
Sat around a table laden.

The Mer-Chief rose and said,
"You will be led;
In to the Sea-Serpent's slimy domain,
To find something for your great gain!"

So she swam off to the bottom of Serpent-Sea,
To fulfill the Mer-Chief's hopeful plea.
She began to run out of air,
So she went back up to the surface, very aware.

Back to Mermaid Bay she swam,
Then sat herself in a wide open clam.
She sat there and cried,
But then suddenly she realised.

She could turn into a Mermaid now!
Verity-Evelyn took a bow.
Then swam back into Serpent-Sea,
As Mermaid-y as a Mermaid could be.

She ventured into the Sea-Serpent's lair,
Quite nearly as fast as a hare.
"Hello!" She hissed in Serpent tongue,
Out of the murky shadows sprung:

A gigantic Sea-Serpent, long and lean,

Shone with a shiny sheen.
He asked her a riddle, which she answered correctly,
Then the Sea-Serpent gave her his pearl-tooth directly.

She became a Mermaid so that is the tale,
Now she wears a tiara of pearls quite pale!
Verity-Evelyn had many adventures exciting,
But this one is the most enticing!

The Dragon fight

Y5

It was cold like a winter day,
When children aren't allowed to play.
All of a sudden, the ground started to shake,
Out came a Scaley dragon just starting to wake.

Everyone screamed and ran to hide,
Because the monster was behind.
It is like a lion stalking its prey,
Its scales are moving as it sways.

The people are shouting and screaming as they run,
But as they start to run they are outdone.
But there is the Hero with his golden hair glowing,
With a cape in the wind that is blowing.

Suddenly the heroic Hero came out of no where,
Fighting the beast to the city square.
That is the end of the dragon beast,
As everyone cheered that is it! Let's now have a feast.

So that is the end of the chase,
There is no more of the dragon race.

The unknown figure

It was a beautiful, sunlit day,
everyone relaxing on the Chesapeake bay.
The sun shone through the forest trees,
as they swayed through the gentle breeze.
Promptly, an unknown figure appeared,
everyone running away appeared.
All was left was one solitary man,
what was going to be his master plan?

They looked onto each others gaze,
following each other through the forest maze.
He dodged and turned and weaved,
the speed of the man could not be believed.
He spun around to the monster's wrath,
and cast a dangerous spell in its path.
The monster squirmed and squealed,
as it got hit by a ferocious force field.
It flew backwards and slammed to the ground,
Making a deafening, ghastly sound.

Everyone cheered and applauded,
this man must now be rewarded.
They led him to the castle door,
all the servants bowed down to the floor.
The king entered with an ivory wand,
behind a broad-hall pillar far beyond.

Rainforest Poem

Tarantulas giving a fright
In the middle of the night
Bats using their beacoring signal
Birds in the middle of their flight
Herbivores weakening from battle

Piranhas snapping
Bats flapping
Snakes overlapping

There are Rainforest trees that are very tall

The trees look like a wall
Frog jumping all around
Tigers hunting with prey abound

Rainforest Poem

Slimey smooth snakes gliding along the floor
Bees buzzing looking for pollen sliding deep down to look for more.

Green leaves fall from tall trees.

Bumpy bark shakes in the breeze.

Birds fly high in the sky.

Sticky frogs jump high to catch a fly.

Night time is the time to sight

Snakes slowly come towards their prey and bite.

Sometimes tarantulas can give you a fright.

Birds have really good eyesight.

WHO'S THE GREATEST??

---

One day The Brain had a teaser.

Who is the greatest part?

He asked the face.

I AM THE GREATEST!!!

The Eye rolled.

Look at all the beauty around you.

The tall towering trees.

The beautiful blue sky.

Without me your world would be blank.

I AM THE GREATEST!!!

Sniffed, The Nose.

Imagine life without me.

The sweet-smelling roses.

The delicious aroma of spaghetti bolognaise...

All that is LOST without me.

I AM THE GREATEST!!!

Interrupted, The Ear.

Listen! Listen! Listen!

Do you hear the whistling wind?

Do you hear the buzzing bees OR each other!

Who wouldn't want to hear that?

I AM THE GREATEST!!!

Shouted, The Mouth.

I feed you all.

I eat carrots just for you eyes.

I talk for you.

Without me you will NEVER be heard,

And the world would be SILENT!!!

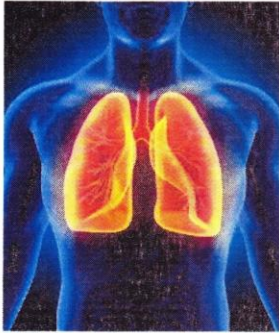

SHOOSH!! SHOOSH!!! All of you.

I have heard enough.

No part is better than the other.

You all need each other,

To make a beautiful face.

WHAT IS THIS PLACE?

The long train ride

The endless clattering

How would it make you feel?

What happens when you arrive

In this cold, damp, dark place?

They speak a strange way

and eat weird food

the mattress on the bed is itchy

when can I go home?

I heard on the radio today that Liverpool had been bombed and pray that mother is ok...
